GOOD FOR A GIRL: A Life
Running In A Man's World by Lauren Fleshman

A memoir and manifesto about women and sports, told through the experiences of a highly decorated runner. From the time Lauren first laced up her sneakers to out-sprint the boys in her neighborhood, through puberty when half of all girls abandon sports for good, and into elite running where she had to be “fast and fuckable” to fit into the Nike machine, Lauren felt she was bumping into a system that was not made for her.

THIS IS WHAT IT SOUNDS LIKE: A Legendary Record Producer-Turned-Brain Scientist Explores Why We Fall in Love with Music by Dr. Susan Rogers & Dr. Ogi Ogas

A legendary record producer for Prince, among others, and brain scientist will write the first trade book about listening to music that goes beyond the familiar concepts of scales, key signatures, and chord progressions to explore a set of overlooked and under-appreciated (yet easily grasped) aspects of music that can help readers get more out of their relationship with music. In this book, Susan Rogers argues that even if you don't know an A sharp from a B flat, you can still be an indispensable part of music as long as you go about listening in the right way. . . for you.

MIXED MESSAGES: How Incentives Really Work by Uri Gneezy

Uri Gneezy, one of the best-known behavioral economists in the world, argues that internal rewards are only part of the story. The key to changing behavior, both in others and in ourselves, is using the right combination of economic and psychological rewards. Stakes & Mistakes teaches you to be incentive smart. It shows you what factors you need to consider when designing powerful, motivating incentives.
