A Scientific Superstar, a Plague, and a Bigtime Artist/Thinker

The rise of the West is unparalleled in world history. The countries north of the Alps had for centuries been regarded as a backward region, which had attached itself to Greco-Roman culture of the south and east, gradually, developed its own distinctive version of Christianity and its own form of agrarian culture. Western Europe lagged far behind the Christian empire of Byzantium, where the Roman Empire had not collapsed as it had in Europe.
Karen Armstrong, Island A Short History, Bloomsbury Library, 2006.

The first new science grounded in what we would call facts was the anatomy of Vesalius (1543), which depended on the public space of the anatomy theatre and the public space of the printed book to rebut the previously uncontested authority of Galen.
David Weinreb, The Revolution of Science, Harper Collins, 2003.

Tasting Light: Ten Science Fiction Stories to Rewire Your Perceptions

Ten top young adult authors ask, what could the future hold? They then imagine what the world could be through the lens of technologies emerging today. In this anthology of speculative fiction tales buzzing with possibility, hope, innovation, anger, and tenderness offer a dazzling challenge to connect with open minds, hearts, and senses – in a fast-changing world.

GUESS HOW MUCH I LOVE YOU

I Love You All Year Round: Four classic Guess How Much I Love You stories

Sam McBratney and Anita Jeram

Join Little Nutbrown Hare and Big Nutbrown Hare as they laugh and play together throughout the year. There are green shoots and tadpoles to spot in spring, a kaleidoscope of summertime colours to discover, falling leaves to chase in the autumn and I-spy to enjoy in the winter snow. In Sam McBratney's four timeless stories, the two hares leap through the seasons, accompanied by Anita Jeram's delicate watercolour illustrations. This special fifteenth anniversary hardback edition features exquisite new cover artwork.
